London, July 22.—Doubt concerning the safety of the British battleship Warspite which may have been caused by German assertions that she was sunk in the Jutland battle, were dispelled when a representative of the Associated Press and other neutral correspondents visited this week a British port where the Warspite was viewed. The entire squadron was almost ready for work. Whatever damage suffered in the battle had been repaired. No scars were visible. "She's as good as new," said the commander of the destroyer on which the party encircled the Warspite within a stone's throw of her.

NO CONFIRMATION OF VILLA'S ACTIVITY

Washington, July 22.—Reports reaching General Pershing and various border points that Villa has assembled a formidable force and is preparing to renew his war on the defacto government had no confirmation today from reliable sources. It was made plain that even if the bandit again is active it will not affect the course of negotiations with the Mexican government.

The capture and punishment of Villa is still desired and the co-operation of American troops to that end will be cheerfully extended. It was said, if the defacto government so desires.

Bridgewater, N. Y., July 22.—Charles E. Hughes and his wife and daughter today went to Southampton Beach, ten miles away, to watch the fast-masted Norwegian barge Glenbridge which went ashore in a fog this morning, while enroute from England to New York. High tide took the ship within 15 yards of shore. She rolled heavily, listing to one side and appeared some time to be about to capsize, and her crew of about fifteen remained aboard.

A large crowd of summer residents of nearby Long Island resorts joined the presidential nominee and his family on the beach.

GERMANY WOULD USE SWEDEN AS BUFFER

ALLEGED SECRET COMMUNICATION OF AGENT PUBLISHED TODAY, STARTS TURMOIL—PLANS ALL MADE.

SENSATION IS CREATED

Country Would be Barrier Against Russia and Asiatic Danger—Austria and Turkey in on Deal.
BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

London, July 22.—A sensation has been created through all of Sweden by the publication of an alleged official report from a German agent in this country regarding a plan to bring Sweden into a political "if not closer" alliance with Germany as the northern link in "an immovable wall against Russia and against the Asiatic danger." This will, representing a new idea as to Germany's policy, is referred to as being constructed by Turkey, Bulgaria, Austria and Germany.

For the work of propaganda in Sweden the alleged report asks for preliminary appropriation of over 100,000 marks and suggests that Turkey and the other allies of Germany be asked to contribute their proper share. The anti-German newspaper in Stockholm comment rather bitterly upon this suggestion of an international "slush fund" for Sweden.

Mr. McKenna replied by explaining that many of the recommendations in the report, evidently written last December, have been carried into effect. It also is asserted that the report explains much of the recent activity in Sweden against Russia and the attempt to force a situation which would cause Sweden to declare war as an ally of the Central Powers.

Seek Swedish Interference.

The report as printed in detail, begins with a discussion of the possible effect of a Russian offensive this summer. It said that if Russia shows sufficient signs of recuperation to reorganize its armies into an effective force, it would be necessary at once to carry forward a propaganda in Sweden showing the Russian people how greatly it would be to their advantage to interfere and ally themselves with Germany thus preserving their present interests and assuring their future."

The report is addressed to "Your Excellency" and among other things:

"Even if you have only a political union in mind, considerable work will be necessary to win over the Swedes, who already are on our side and actively favoring an alliance with the Central Powers. Swedish sentiment cannot be swayed by sporadic methods. It must be trained by systematic and sustained propaganda.

We must win over the entire people by an intensive effort. This propaganda must be cautiously executed if we are to gain the active interference of Sweden in the Spring of 1916.

We must be particularly careful not to let appear that the propaganda springs from a foreign source. Every politician thinking Sweden must be convinced that he had made his choice voluntarily and in the interest of his own nation.

Lacks Direct Cause.

In the opinion of pro-German politicians Sweden has not come into the war because she has lacked a direct cause. But gradually the political influences are becoming more and more unfavorable to the Entente, especially to England. The new constellation of nations, arranged by German diplomacy in the Balkans, has tended to win not only the sympathy but the reason of the Swedes for the Central Powers.

Consequently the politics of the propaganda should be carried forward on three main lines:

First, opposition to and guarantees against British power.

Second, information concerning true conditions in Russia and the danger threatening Sweden from that quarter.

Third, the advantages of a lasting union with the Central Powers.

The so-called Activist group in Sweden has lost considerably in influence lately. Perhaps the designation is unwise chosen. For even some of the best pro-Germans who believe in the ultimate goal of war on behalf of Germany, have hesitated publicly to align themselves with the group which has demanded immediate action.

OPRET IN MILWAUKEE ADMITS CALLING UP SUPPOSED FIANCÉE

University Student, Acquitted of Lambert Girl's Murder, Has Phone Conversation With Miss Youker.

By ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Milwaukee, July 22.—Will H. Opret, University student, recently acquitted of the murder of his sweetheart, Marian Lambert, at Lake Forest, Ill., has been in Milwaukee since Friday, working with his mother and sister-in-law, Mrs. Edward Opret, it was learned (today). The Opret was staying at a downtown hotel and was not registered.

When approached by a newspaperman while in the company of his mother and sister-in-law on a downtown street, Opret at first denied his identity. Finally, after repeated efforts of the reporter to interview Opret, resulted in a chase which lasted several hours today, during which Opret several times left his family and abruptly turned to allies to meet subsequently his mother and Mrs. Ed. Opret at another point.

Opret finally confronted the newspaperman face to face as he was entering the hotel. He then admitted his identity. Opret acknowledged upon questioning that he had talked to the school teacher of whom Marion Lambert is said to have been jealous, over the long distance telephone while

"I will not be quoted concerning Miss Youker at all," said Opret. Reports considered bubble have it that he did ask Miss Youker to marry him.

"I told it to you that I didn't ask her about marrying me you would call me a hat away, so what's the use of saying anything?"

"Say, but I am sorry you found out about it, won't you fellows ever stop hounding me?" he said as he disappeared in the elevator.

With Both Legs Broken and Skull Crushed, It is Feared That Death Will Result—is Taken to Hospital.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Delavan, July 22.—John McSorley, an old resident of this city and very well known, is in a very serious condition in the hospital suffering from injuries received this morning when he was struck by an automobile driven by Mrs. Harriet Smith, daughter of Mrs. and Mr. John Decker of Milton Avenue, Milwaukee.

Mrs. Smith was driving her car on Walworth Avenue towards the lake when she ran down McSorley, who was working in the street. She stopped the car immediately and with the help of other workmen placed the injured man in the car and took him to the hospital.

It was reported by the physicians there that both legs were broken and his skull was crushed. Up to late this afternoon McSorley was still unconscious. His recovery was considered doubtful.

Mrs. Smith was driving a large six-cylinder touring car and was accompanied by Miss Brown of Milwaukee and another young lady. After taking the man to the hospital the party continued their journey to the Lake Hotel at the lake, where they are visiting.

Mr. McSorley has a wife, four daughters, Irene and Phyllis of Delavan, Margaret of New York City, and Mrs. Frank Janis living in the state of Washington, and one son, Arthur of Delavan. He was about sixty years of age. Returns from town have been called. At 4 o'clock this afternoon he was still unconscious.

London, July 22.—Examination of the context of the announcement made in the House of Commons on Wednesday by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, McKenna, shows that he did not state as reported that new taxes would be imposed on shipping companies. The question was raised in the House by Sir Robert Smuts, who suggested the government ought to tax the profits of the shipping companies.

LAUDS THIS CITY'S COMMUNITY SPIRIT

OLIN M. CAWARD, CHAUTAUQUA
SPEAKER, HAS COMMENDA-TION FOR JANESEVILLE'S PROGRESS.

OFFERS SUGGESTIONS

Better Pavements, Drainage of Low lands, and Public Swimming Beach Are Most Important Needs.

Olin M. Caward, lecturer, business man and community expert, praised Janesville's community spirit in his address last evening at the Chautauqua and offered several suggestions which in his opinion might aid in promoting the community welfare.

"You have made a success in your commission form of government," said
Mr. Caward in his enumeration of the things in Janesville which indicate a development of the community spirit.
"You have adopted a modern up-to-date system of street lighting, and you are getting it at almost fifty per cent less cost for installation and upkeep than any other city in the country. You have a federation of women's clubs whose sphere of influence can be greatly extended for the service of the city. And then you have a fine democratic spirit existing in your commercial club. It was one of the things which struck me most favorably and I want to comment it especially."

Mr. Caward referred to the efforts of the commercial club to endow its membership not only manufacturers and merchants, but farmers, employees and laboring men who are working for salary and wages. He was impressed with the contests which are being conducted among the farmer boys and girls of the county in an endeavor to secure a closer interest and a firmer cooperation between city and country.
He praised along this line, the work which is being done to develop good roads and to teach the boys on the farms how to care for and maintain highways. Such information as these boys are receiving would have been much more to him if he could have received it in his boyhood days, he declared.

Not in a spirit of criticism but with the hope of being helpful advice, Mr. Caward said, he offered several recommendations, prominent among which was the city's need for better streets. Janesville, he declared, should be laying pavements at a much more rapid rate than it now is. The expense can be distributed over future years and the result will be more than gratifying. "Where the streets are humpy and bumpy," said Mr. Caward, "a town cannot expect to attract farmers and people in neighboring communities.
Good pavements are indications of progress and development. You should have more and better of them."

One other thing Mr. Caward suggested as a need for Janesville: Draining of the low lands along Rock river in the southern part of the city. Such low places often breed mosquitoes and disease. They should be cleaned up, and transformed into truck gardens or a park system or developed in some way to make them less unsightly and less of a health menace. Along this line Mr. Caward suggested the need of a swimming beach. This might be secured very easily either in the purchasing of the lowlands, or with a little work at Goose Island, or if these places did not appeal, an artificial one could be provided which would bring joy to the city's youngsters.

The interests of the home must be extended out into the community, the speaker declared. The day has passed when the virtues of the home can be confined within its four walls. Modern communities are no better than the average homes, and it remains for fathers and mothers to develop the virtues to such prized in the home in the general life of the community.
It extends to all sorts of activities and conditons. Mr. Caward pointed out, and the more ardent are the citizens in promoting the home atmosphere in the community, the more enterprising and progressive the community will become.

past few days many letters have been received by the state department of agriculture from farmers complaining that a snail is more like a snail than anything else was ever seen. The leaves of their sugar beets, carrots and turnips are most important needs.

Olin M. Caward, lecturer, business man and community expert, praised Janesville's community spirit in his address last evening at the Chautauqua
and offered several suggestions which in his opinion might aid in promoting the community welfare.

"You have made a success in your commission form of government," said
Mr. Caward in his enumeration of the things in Janesville which indicate a development of the community spirit.
"You have adopted a modern up-to-date system of street lighting, and you are getting it at almost fifty per cent
less cost for installation and upkeep than any other city in the country. You have a federation of women's clubs whose sphere of influence can be greatly extended for the service of the city. And then you have a fine democratic spirit existing in your commercial club. It was one of the things which struck me most favorably and I want to comment it especially."

Mr. Caward referred to the efforts of the commercial club to endow its membership not only manufacturers
and merchants, but farmers, employees
and laboring men who are working for salary and wages. He was impressed with the contests which are being con-

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

So much is written for boys, and so much attention is given to their development and welfare that it is refreshing to find a word of encouragement, now and then, for girls, for the girl problem is one of the unsolved problems, demanding attention. A writer for the "Woman's World" asks this pertinent question, "Why aren't you happy?" and then goes on to say:

"This question is addressed particularly to many girls in small towns and on farms who have the blessed privilege of fresh air and abundant room, both indoors and out, good food, faithful friends and a definite future. Why aren't you happy? One answer is that you do not understand how well off you are. How should you, since you have not lived in the city, and have no experience with which you can contrast your present good fortune? Your idea of the city is drawn at second-hand from what you have read and from what people have told you; and in what you have read and heard you have unconsciously selected only what you liked and ignored the rest."

"You may say that you know of a case where a girl went to the city, got well-paid work, advanced further and further until she was in business for herself, and is now making a good income. Or you may tell of a girl who, soon after she reached the city, married a man receiving a good salary, and she comes home for visits wearing beautiful clothes and having a very sophisticated air. These cases are the exception, and you do not know the price the two girls may have paid for their success. But this aside, ask yourself if you have the alert, shrewd brain, the intense power of concentration, the quick grasp, the unshakable perseverance that will win you success in business. Ask yourself if you have the charm and beauty which might attract a well-to-do husband; also remind yourself of how much the element of chance enters in meeting a man whom you would care to marry and who would care to marry you."

"How can you be happy? By making yourself like your life just where it is. You can do this by dwelling on your advantages and ignoring what else you might wish you had. As you practice happiness it will grow; you will give and gain love increasingly, than which there can be no greater blessing."

Every girl can afford to read this word of advice and then read it again, for it is wise and wholesome. There is no life so free from care and mental anxiety as life on the farm or in the smaller communities, and there is no class of homes where the girl is more safely environed.

It may seem like a hum-drum existence but it is close to nature, and while the canopy which shuts us in may be prescribed and narrow it is large enough to shelter our friends, and the zone which it covers may be made a paradise if we appreciate its advantages.

The city offers many attractions, from an outside viewpoint, and the life seems so alluring that many girls are tempted to forsake the humble surroundings of the old home, and cast in their lot with the mass of struggling humanity, to discover later that they made a mistake.

An army of boys drift into the cities from the country every year and many of them become ciphers. They are soon lost in the maelstrom where people are fighting for a foothold and existence. The lure of the city influenced them, and the bright lights of the great white way seemed more attractive than the golden sunsets out in the open, until they awoke to find it a delusion and a snare.

If so many of the boys meet with disappointment, what of the girls, who follow their example and exchange the safety and comforts of the home for the half bedroom and cheap boarding house for which the city is noted.

The average girl, in normal condition, wants a home of her own. She plans for it and dreams about it, as she has a right to do, for it is a God-given ambition, but if she is so fortunate as to be a country girl, the city is the poorest market in the world for her to find a companion for the life journey.

It is an old saying, and as true as it is ancient, that "there are no friends like the old friends," and the old friends are usually the friends of our boy and girlhood. If the girl aspires to be a new woman then the city is a good place to exploit her theories, but if she is blessed with the natural instincts of domesticity, there is no place to work out her destiny.

like the old home with its homely surroundings.

The city boy with his dress suit and ten dollar salary, may look like a man. He may be courteous and gallant, and put to blush his rival from the country, but John will outwear him, and wearing qualities are very important for the long journey.

Twenty thousand women attended a convention in New York last month. They were delegates from the Women's Clubs of America, and came from every state in the union. Not suffragettes, or disciples of the "New Idea," but practical, common sense women, fired with ambition to do something to help humanity.

Some of the delegates came from states where the welfare work had much to do with the girl problem. It is gratifying to note that society is waking up to this important question, and that the women, through club organization, are paving the way for effective work.

The fact is recognized, as never before, that the girl and boy are very much alike in many ways. They enjoy the same innocent sports, including many athletic games, and are possessed of the same restless spirit.

What society does for the boy, to entertain and protect him, through the restless age, it should do for the girl, for she needs it more. If the boy needs the gymnasium and swimming pool, the girl needs it just as much, and it should be generously provided.

Every inland city should have a girl's building, where girls can find not only recreation and entertainment, but also shelter and a temporary home when necessary.

The day has passed when any of us may ask with impunity, "Am I my brother's keeper?" A sacred obligation rests upon us, and this is especially true so far as the next generation is concerned. If the women of tomorrow are strong and stalwart, it will be because the girls of today are carefully protected and developed, and this the home can not do alone.

The recent enrollment of a young people's church society, showed that ninety per cent were girls. It was a religious society, and the boys were not attracted. The girls, like their mothers, take to the church, and it is a haven of safety for many of them, but the church is just beginning to realize that it has been remiss in duty by neglecting the social life which means so much to both the boys and girls.

The modern church is open seven days of the week. It combines with religious instruction all the wholesome pleasures available, and the children of the home graduate into the church naturally because they love it and want to be a part of it.

The reason why your girl and mine is stoned from the fate of the Lambert girl—whose tragic death has been so prominently before the public, during the past months—is because outside influences have aided the home in protecting her. Shall we lend a hand to make these influences more effective?

UNPARDONABLE

We can forgive the hair-brained mutt who trumps his partner's ace; The bonehead who buys mining stock raw have some saving grace; There may be circumstances when we can forgive the goat.

Who likes a woman out to row and gather roses in the boat?

We may purchase a deal lightly with the chump who has his friend A carefully prepared cigar, which shools sparks at the end;

The man who borrows our lawn mower and keeps the thing a week

May have some saving qualities of which we may well speak.

But we cannot find one kind word of any sort to say

About the girl who says: "Old man, you're looking bad today."

UNCLE ABNER

There are enough other ways to be unhappy without wearin' a stiff bosom shirt on work days.

Nobody knows just how a married couple can get along peacefully as well as do a man and woman who have been married about two weeks.

Hank Tummins is a good feller and every girl loves him, except his wife.

The feller that beenargin' about his spine hasn't had it very long.

Willie Tummins has learned how to chew tobacco and when he grows up he will either be a baseball pitcher or member of the supreme court.

There ain't nothin' that a woman wants worse than a safety pin when she wants it.

MAKING A NOISE

When we purchased ouralmstrook a gentleman comes up and tells us that our rubber bulb honker was passe. "Smart folks are not using them any more. Honk horns don't attract any attention and don't make the police a bit angry. What you want is my patent wildcat yell.

It makes a sound exactly like a wildcat suffering from severe toothache and each yell for nine miles will be heard and when the little yell will it echoes and re-echoes for a week. If I pass the same spot a week later you will still hear the wildcat signal that you let loose the week before. It is guaranteed to topple the driver off from a coal wagon. The price com-plete and installed is $47."

We had the wildcat screamer put on and it remained in style for nearly a month, when we left for a new pipe organ attachment which cost $56.37. On our home return we play almost any tune from "The Doxology" to "Tipperary."

If we had to run over a cat we could do it to music.

The pipe organ was in style for two weeks when man came over and sold us a night owl boomer. From that we went to the elephant trumpet, the hyena shriek, the rattle-snake rattle and the tootie howl and we are still looking for perfection in noises.

When some man invents an automobile horn that will emit a sound that is pleasant and tempting, sooth- ing and nerve-racking all at once we will have solved the problem. In the meantime we have paid more for noises than we paid for the car originally.

STILL AT IT

Mary has an automobile. And she ran it like a man:

Twas a dandy, forty-horsepower,

As a driver she was reckless

And went whizzing through the town.

She defied speed regulations.

And she ran the people down.

Starly couldn't make her payments. And they took the car away:

Then she was almighty lonesome.

Knew not how to spend the day.

So she joined a sewing circle.

Twas a club of great renown:

There she's perfectly at home, for she's still running people down.

CLEVELAND.

G ROVER CLEVELAND of New York was the first Democrat elected since 1888. He defeated James G. Blaine of Maine in 1884 by a vote of 4,911,017 to 4,848,334. T. A. Hendricks of Indiana was chosen vice president.

However, in the next election Cleveland was defeated by Benjamin Harrison of Indiana by a vote of 233 to 168. Cleveland received a majority of the popular vote that year, nevertheless.

Levi P. Morton of New York was elected vice president.

Cleveland then came back in the election of 1892 and defeated Harrison by a vote of 5,538,918 to 5,170,108. Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois was elected vice president that year.

DEAN OF MEN ADDED TO ADVISE U. W. BOYS

Wisconsin Sees Necessity of Official to Guide and Advise Students While Not in Classes.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE] Madison, Wis., July 24.—A dean of men, who will look after the school life and activities of men students outside the classroom, has been added to the administrative staff of the University of Wisconsin. Professor Scott H. Goodnight, who has been chairman of the faculty committee on student life and interests for two years, has been appointed dean of men.

This new office has been created at the suggestion of the board of visitors and others who have felt that other administrative officers burdened with academic and departmental duties, cannot give sufficiently close attention to the activities of men students.

The dean of men will try to come into personal touch with the men students to guide them in securing the greatest benefits from their university work.

The work of the dean of men will be in many ways similar to that of the dean of women, an office which was created in 1897 and has been held by Mrs. Lois K. Mathews since 1911. The dean of men will try to come into personal touch with the men students to guide them in securing the greatest benefits from their university work.

Rooming house conditions will be one of the first matters which the new dean of men will undertake. Living conditions of women students have been improved by the dean of women, but new methods must be devised by the dean of men because of the larger number of men students and the lack of house chairmen such as the women have.

Much of the work of the dean of men Professor Goodnight has already instituted. Frequent comparisons of the scholarship of the members of various student organizations, which compiles, enable these societies to keep tab on their members. Business-like accounting systems for student publications and other enterprises have been developed and his office audits the accounts of managers and officers. Co-operative buying is being urged among students and boarding clubs, and the letting of printing contracts for student publications is now being considered.

All social functions, athletics, dramatic and musical performances, and all student publications are under the dean's jurisdiction. Many fraternity problems are being solved through the meeting ground furnished by his office. A detailed set of eligibility requirements for students engaged in activities outside the classroom has been drawn up to prevent weak students from undertaking more than they are able to handle successfully.

Besides this work with student organizations, the dean of men will supply the long-felt need of a faculty officer who will seek to get into personal touch with men students who need advice and cannot be reached through any organization or academic regulation.

ROAD HOUSE AGAIN SCENE OF A SCANDAL

SIXTEEN AND SEVENTEEN YEAR OLD EDGERTON GIRLS TELL REVOLTING TALE OF NIGHT IN SOUTH JANESEVILLE HOTEL.

THREE ARE IMPLICATED

Frank Williams, Roadhouse Proprietor, and Young Men Who Brought Them There, May Be Held.

An anonymous telephone message this morning, which resulted in the arrest of two minor Edgerton girls at the Northwestern hotel at South Janesville, and the vivid and startling stories they told, gives county authorities a new lead replete with evidence which may eventually result in the conviction of at least one of the two alleged roadhouses. In that locality, the girls were brought before Judge Maxfield and District Attorney Dunderwille and their stories recorded verbatim.

Evidence at hand implicates two Janesville young men and Frank Williams, proprietor of the roadhouse. Expectations were that the district attorney might issue a war-charges against Williams on statutory grounds and against the local youths for contributing to the delinquency of the girls. Furthermore, it is wholly within the jurisdiction of the district attorney to begin action to the girls sent to a state school for girls' delinquency charges.

Mrs. Mae C. Smith and daughters, Renette and Mildred, 203 Jefferson avenue, are spending a few days in Chicago.

Miss Helen Fox leaves today for a trip to Florida.

Miss Evelyn Krelle of South Third street, was hostess to the members of the Sigma Psi club on Thursday evening. At cards Miss Katherine Caron won the prize. The affair was given for Miss Dorothy Addy of Minneapolis, Minn.

Miss Alice Culen of South Bluff street is home from a visit at the country home of Miss Marie Fox.

Mrs. Edna Queen and daughter and son of Olive street, are home from a visit of ten days in Chicago with friends.

Miss Katherine Jeffris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Jeffris of St. Lawrence avenue, is home. Miss Katherine graduated from Vassar college in 1914 with the highest honors of the class. She has been spending several weeks at the summer resorts in the east with friends.

Mrs. Francis Gray has gone to Portage, Wis., where she is visiting with relatives for several days.

Mrs. Peter Myers of Oakdale avenue, has gone to Tampa, Idaho, where she is visiting her sister, who lives on one of the large cattle ranches in that state.

Miss L. Carle and A. J. Harris went to Kenosha yesterday to join Mrs. Carle and Miss Harris, who have been playing in the women's golf tournament at Kenosha this week. The party will spend Sunday in Racine.

Mrs. A. E. Bingham of Wisconsin had gone to Lauderdale lake, where she is spending several days with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Smith and daughter, Judge Maxfield would disclose, but the story of the girls was called. Her story was recorded. The younger girl was next called and like the first girl experienced what she related them over taken down for further questioning.

Without the office, and with the court and the district attorney were going over the testimony, the girls talked freely of their experiences. One lives with her mother at the Tobacco City. Her father is dead. The other girl's parents are separated, but still resides at Edgerton.

They were brought into the municipal court and District Attorney Dunwidde called. Learning the meager facts known at that time, he once went into star chamber session with Judge Maxfield. What transpired neither Mr. Dunwidde nor Judge Maxfield would disclose, but a stenographer appeared and the elder of the girls was called. Her story was recorded. The younger girl was next called and like the first girl experienced what she related them over taken down for further questioning.

They left home yesterday afternoon and took up the home of a woman living a mile west of Edgerton. At this place were to be known the Janesville girls. Shortly after their arrival the Janesville young man arrived in an automobile and later went to Edgerton and procured a supply of beer. All parties of drinks.

The Janesville boys drove to Edgerton with the local girls so that the latter could catch the train for Janesville and then return to the farm.

Mr. and Mrs. William Jeffris left for Chicago this morning. They were called there by the death of Fred Jeffris, who passed away yesterday. Funeral arrangements will be announced.

Miss Ethel Heller of North Franklin street will spend a week with her sister, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Williams at Deloit Lake.

A few days ago an old friend of mine, by the name of Billie Armstrong, who has spent many years in the show business in an official capacity with the Hagenbeck and Wallace Shows, while on his way from St. Paul to Chicago, stopped over one train to visit old times in the show business and during our rehearsal of the old days he said, "Dave, you must remember William Parmley, better known possibly in the business as 'Bronco Bill,' and," said he, "Parmley has got rich in the business. For more than twenty-five years Parmley has been what is known in the business as the program man and travels about two weeks ahead of the show, getting out programs and where it is possible getting the merchants to advertise on large mailing covers which would appear on the elephants and camels in the parade."

Parmley for many years was with the Hagenbeck and Wallace Shows and later went with the Sells Floto Shows of Denver where he is at the present time and while Parmley was a good liver always stopping at the best hotels, yet he always knew how to take care of his money and every fall would run in with a good bank account for his season's work.

Parmley for several years made Janesville his home during the winter time and the late Ed Johnson of the Parrotel was his close personal friend and Parmley would always hand Mr. Johnson several hundred dollars in the fall and draw on him during the winter as he needed the money. Several years ago Parmley commenced buying property in Columbus, Ohio, where Mr. Armstrong told me that he owned five different pieces of property on which he could get considerably more money than he paid for them at the time of purchase. Mr. Armstrong said he also owned five or six different pieces of property in Denver which has been the winter quarters of the Sells Floto shows and this property was sold a big sacrifice to the owners as Denver for some years had been overbuilt and when the turn came many people had to sacrifice by selling at the price the property was mortgaged for. But said Mr. Armstrong it is conservative to say that William Parmley by his savings and shrewd investments is worth at least $25,000 and all this was earned from his salary and a percentage on which Parmley worked and shrewd investments.

Bill Parmley has many friends in Janesville that will be glad to learn of his prosperity and that he could retire any day with plenty of this world's goods.

What's the big show? Why the circus of course, and every other branch of the circus. Shakespeare a deservedly popular playwright, used material for many centuries familiar to circus folks. Today we are some of us laboring to celebrate fittingly the three hundredth anniversary of his death or his birth, or marriage or some other event important to man.

The sources from which he drew his inspiration we honor in just one way—by going to the circus whenever we can. The circus is the thing and always has been. The circus is the great reservoir that supplies the tiny striking springs of drama, of vaudeville and burlesque. The circus is a well-known amusement that never failed. Shakespearean revivals would be naught if the circus hadn't been. The show's the thing, the play comes afterward. The show—the circus—includes everything.

The big thing in Janesville's entertainment next month is the circus. This will be entertainment, big, comprehensive and valuable.

This is a touch of the elemental forces that drive the circus. The circus is as founded on the social fundamentals that we outside of the circus have been trying to understand with fair success—only fair—for a matter of thousands of years. We have gone here and there trying to find ways

NEWS NOTES FROM MOVELAND BY DAISY DEAN

Fanny Ward's numerous friends will be more than pleased to learn that her six weeks' honeymoon is over and that she is now on the Pacific coast, making daily appearances before the camera for her next picture. Jack Dean, Miss Ward's actor husband, plays opposite her in the pictures, and a very good job they make.

Those who have seen the girlish Miss Ward in pictures will be interested to learn that she is twenty-one and admits it. Here's hoping that she remains on the stage and screen forty-one years longer. The last picture in which she starred was "The Gutter Magdalene."

WHY OH WHY.
Do fat women sit on the ends of aisles?

Do thin women stretch out their legs under them?

Do married women get a thrill by looking at J. Warren Kerrigan?

Do girls who earn an honest living in laundry learn to become great movie actresses?

Do they feed all the fresh air to the pipe organ and none to the audience?

Do usherettes always lead you to the seat you do not want?

Do you not shoot them?

Do the people behind you invariably eat raw onions before coming to the theater?

FROM THE OPERA

Mme. Gamma Walska is the most recent recruit from the operatic stage to the movies. She is the Polish grand opera singer who lost her voice recently. While waiting for the expected return of her voice under treatment of a throat specialist, she has signed a film contract.

Helen Rossen, who recently became Mrs. Ashton Dearholt, is spending her honeymoon in a trip with E. Forrest Taylor. Nay, pause, gentle reader. Taylor is filling 100 dates at moving picture houses, giving a sketch with Ada Daniels and showing "Peg O' the Ring," a five reel release, in which appeared with Miss Rossen. Taylor tours California, Nevada, Idaho and Utah, while Mrs. Dearholt remains with hubby Ashton.

"The Breaking of Cactus Moore," three-reel subject, tells the story of a hard, revengeful westerner, who, after years of undying hatred for the man who married the girl he loved, is brought face to face with his real self, when he appears as an unbidden guest at the marriage of his son and the daughter of his mate. William V. and also plays the name part. His supporting cast includes Lydia Titus, Joe Ryan, E. F. Power and Peggy Coudray.

Vivian Rich played a dual role recently. She was a bridesmaid at a wedding on Saturday night and then acted as chauffeur to the newlyweds, driving them to Los Angeles to begin their honeymoon.

ire, will the fascinating Billie great her friends, for it is in "Gloria's Romance," a wonderful motion picture novel from the pen of Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Hughes, that Billie is now at work. She plays the part of Gloria Stamford, daughter of a millionaire banker, and will be afforded unusual opportunities to wear some gowns that are sure to be the talk of the year. These frocks were specially designed for Miss Burke by Henry Bendel, Lulu and Balcony, known the world over for their unique creations and are certain to be audience most carefully by all who are interested in fashions of the moment.

The supporting cast is headed by Henry Kolker, an actor of sterling merit, who has appeared as the star both on Broadway and on tour, and on the country as a dancer and comedian. Miss Pennington has been wisely starred in a photoplay which is a story of musical comedy life, thus giving her the greatest opportunity to display her fair-famed talent on the screen.

Susie is, in fact, the daughter of an actress who takes up the profession as soon as she is big enough to walk.

As in real life, Susie finds that her diminutive stature is no bar to the accomplishment of great things, and she soon becomes very popular.

But the show fair and she is forced to seek admission to the old home, which her mother had deserted many years before. Here she finds two maidenly aunts, who are horrified at her being an actress.

Let us leave this hapless little bundle of repressed happiness in the hands of her austere aunts, whose vain efforts to crush all her individuality and charm fail miserably and only give rise to rebellion. There is a lovely real honest lover—and a young chap who hopes to win Susie's favor through his money bags; then there is an old man who mistakes Susie for an unsophisticated little darling. In other words, there is a wealth of comedy and drama in "Susie Snowflake."

Victor Moore is to be congratulated on securing such an attraction for his patrons, as the picture is in tremendous demand among theatre managers and it was only because the Beverly offered higher price for the film than their competitors that they were able to land the production at this time.

The first chapter of "Gloria's Romance" will be shown at the Beverly on Wednesday. Beautiful photos of Billie Burke will be given free on Wednesday. The Beverly will present as an extra attraction Wednesday, Edith Storey in "The Shop Girl," in five acts.

AT THE BEVERLY MONDAY.

Violet Mersereau in "Broken Fettters."

To those Americans who are kept from their customary trip to Europe by the present conflict, the Roman scenes in "The Making of Maddalena" will bring pleasant memories at the Apollo on Wednesday.

In any case the picturesque Roman streets with cobble pavement, public fountain in the square before the Roman arch, the bazaars, the bright colored dresses together with the scenes of courtly life create a very interesting atmosphere. The foreign flavor surrounds the story of a beautiful Italian model, Edna Goodrich, as "Maddalena" the model sits the imagination with the force of her sympathetic appeal. In scenes of strong pathos and suffering and her heroism in the stormy scenes of emotion that follow make the story alive with the breath of reality.

This Morosco-Pearl attraction is coming to the Apollo theatre next Wednesday.

AT THE BEVERLY WEDNESDAY.

Billie Burke in "Gloria's Romance."

Billie Burke, famous star of the speaking stage and proclaimed by many theatrical critics America's most charming actress, is coming to Janesville. Not in real life, but on the motion picture screen of the Beverly theatre.

AT THE BEVERLY THURSDAY.

Victor Moore and Anita King in "The Race."

During the picturization of the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company's production of "The Race" to be seen again at the Apollo on Tuesday, which Victor Moore is to star, supported by Anita King, the Paramount girl, and an all-star cast, betting was two to one at the studio that the principals could not finish their picture whole. In the first two days they had four mishaps. On the first day Victor Moore was arrested for driving with his muffler open. The same day Miss King was trying out the race which had been loaned by Barney Oldfield, famous racing driver, she skidded on a slippery street and slew a "4d."

The next day while watching an explosion Miss King was struck in the head by a flying piece of rock and knocked down. She was thought at first two ribs were broken, and she was rushed to the hospital. Fortunately she suffered only a bad bruise.

Tom Hiboura, the photographer, was knocked down by the force of the explosion, but fortunately the camera was uninjured.

AT THE BEVERLY TONIGHT.

"Civilization's Child."

For the first time since he scored such a marked success in support of Billie Burke in "Gloria's Romance" on the death of the American stage, the dead of the Beverly, will be seen in a Triangle feature tonight. The boy made the trip with the scow masters and camp directors. During the time spent at the lake there were few accidents and all the camp duties of the scouts were executed in faultless manner. Much appreciation was shown and the scouts wish to thank those persons sending the gifts to the camp. The location of the camp was on Pierce's Point and through the kindness and generosity of S. S. Pierce, the owner of the land, the scouts were enabled to make camp there free of charge. This act of kindness was largely due to the conduct of the boys in keeping the grounds clean and doing no damage. SUSIE SNOWFLAKE

THE GAZETTE'S MOTORIST PROBLEM DEPARTMENT

(Published Saturdays.)

Motoring Department. The Gazette has a six-cylinder car. The engine has good compression, but the first cylinders have been down recently and all valves seemed to stick after cleaning. To grind the valves at the present time costs me $6. Do you think it advisable for me to do the work myself? I know very little about it, but is it safe to try myself? Is there any way to do the work myself? Is there any way to secure a reliable spark plug tester which I can secure at a reasonable price?

Motoring Department. The Gazette has a six-cylinder Northwestern. The head motor in my car upon which some of the rocker arms are worn just enough so that they will not move, yet still make it in the same position. Remove the plates at sides to get at the valves. Pull out split washer which holds the spring in place. It may be removed by any good grinding compound or sandpaper. Mix to consistency of thick cream, i.e., so it will just flow. Place a thin film of oil over the mechanism needs in the form of valve. Replace valves and see that it seats properly. Then fit it back. Use longhand screw driver, place in slot head of valve and turn valve back and forth in a circular direction. Do this several times to seat the valve stem seal, turn a quarter turn and continue grinding. Keep grinding and turning this way for several minutes. Then remove valves clean and inspect. When ground properly a slight burr will appear on the face of the valve.

Spark plug testers may be bought at any supply store at very little cost.

Motoring Department. The Gazette has a 1915 Ford which has been driven about nine thousand miles. The oil and carbon removed every thousand miles; the valves ground every two thousand miles; given the car the best of attention, and the engine runs like a top. Last year I noticed that when the spark lever passes the seventh and eighth notches one or two cylinders at a time fire. The spark seems to be at the side and both matches are out. I now have a new commutator, but it acts the same with the new as with the old timer, having tried both in different times. Have any suggestions of the cause of timer? No impression.

A SUBSCRIBER.—Had the four points tested, new tungsten points but in it still misses. Had the machine in several times, but the trouble has not been located. I think the magneto for lighting, I have thought, perhaps the weak magnets may be the cause of the missing, but why does it miss fire when the spark is in the correct position?

Is it advisable to have the magnets changed or magnetized? I understand the job to be done without tearing down the engine, and is less expensive than replacing the magneto.

W. Z.—This is one of those baffling troubles that detract so much from the joys of motoring. It may be that when the timer is in this position there is a surplus of current being sent to either contact or the central lever may tilt it far enough to throw it out of contact. Try cleaning out the oil and tightening the retaining nut. The timer wire may have a break in it which shortens at that time or the roller may even so far that it does not reach the contact in certain positions of the timer.

The Ford people do not recharge the batteries, it would hardly pay to experiment in view of the fact that new magnets cost so little. . . .

Motoring Department. The Gazette—What are the change speeds necessary in locomotives for forward motion? In reverse there is only forward and reverse motion, so that in starting the lever is all the way toward the front, and in backing the lever is all the way toward the quadrant. As a locomotive goes speed the lever is on back a notch or so at a time until the maximum speed is attained when the position of the lever will be about two or three notches from the neutral center. At dead slow the valves are closed, and provided of course that the valves open properly, it would open the throttle so far that it would not move, just as it is, therefore, in what one might call a neutral position. Getting this same sort of speed lever used in an automobile in the two positions in style of engine in the two positions E. S.

In the first place on account of the cam-shaft and valve action the automobile engine cannot be run backwards. Secondly, it is not started by admitting pressure to the cylinder, but by drawing enough explosive mixture to carry the engine over again. The engine has only a limited range of speed, and lastly it operates under more or less load, going up hill as well as on level roads, thus does the locomotive. If the locomotive were required to pull a load up as steep as a grade an automobile takes, provided it could secure traction, it would require a gear reduction.

The automobile engine must be started by outside power and must run at or above certain speed to prevent stalling. While running we control the speed by means of the throttle, and in the case of the valves action as you describe it would be equivalent to closing the throttle and would slow down the motor. When we come to grade the engine slows down, because of the greater work it must do.

AGED INDIAN FIGHTERS MARCH IN PREPAREDNESS PARADE

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

San Francisco, July 22.—Veterans of the Civil War, Spanish War Veterans and aged men who participated in the Indian campaigns in the early days in California were the most prominent figures in San Francisco's preparedness parade here today. It was estimated when the parade began that between 15,000 and 20,000 men would have marched past the reviewing stand before the demonstration was finished. All the fraternal organizations of the city were represented, each marching as an individual unit.

WISCONSIN COAL DEALERS HOLD ANNUAL MEETING IN MADISON JULY 26 AND 27

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Madison, Wis., July 22.—While the thermometer is hovering around the 100 mark in the crank case in about fifteen minutes, the coal dealers meet to talk about cold weather and the sale of coal. It is the annual meeting of the Illinois and Wisconsin Retail Coal Dealers' Association. J. P. Dooley, Peoria, Ill., president of the association; L. L. Ragan, Chicago, is secretary and C. S. Dodge, Monroe, Wis., is treasurer. On Wednesday evening the convention here July 26-27 to talk about cold weather and the sale of coal.

The convention will be addressed by Dooley and Mayor George Say Thursday Governor Phillips is to take the convention. Among the topics which the convention will discuss are the extension of credit, the collection of shortage claims from railroads and whether the sale of coal should be on a cash basis.

Mooseheart, Ill., July 22.—"Howdy Pap!" Does the addition of either kerosene or gasoline render it any more efficient? If so, what proportion should be added? And what any dangers or disadvantages attached to the use of either?"

J. A. S.

Either used alone gives a very sharp explosion, which is much more violent than that of gasoline. It adds materially to the power of gasoline when mixed with it. In racing cars, therefore, it is used at times to fueling carburetors, especially when racing cars, but it has a bad effect on the bearings, tending to flatten them, and may even break some of the parts if the addition of either continued very long.

The writer, however, does not recommend the use of either or any other in gasoline.

CHAPTER VI. "A Bit About Australia."

I HAD a cup of coffee and some cold ham, while the young man of goggles and leather mitten yawned away on the hearth rug.

"You find me in the deuce of a mess, Mr.—By the bye, you haven't told me your name. Twisden? Any relation of old Tomm Tom Twisden of the Sixtieth? No. Well, you see I'm Liberal candidate for this part of the world, and I had a meeting on tonight at Brattleburn. That's my chief town and an infernal Tory stronghold.

"I had got the colonial ex-premier fellow, Crumpton, coming to speak for me tonight and had the thing tremendously billed and the whole place ground baited. This afternoon I got a wire from the ruffian saying he has got influenza at Blackpool, and here am I left to do the whole thing myself. I had meant to speak for ten minutes and must now go on for forty, and, though I've been racking my brains for three hours to think of something, I simply cannot last the course.

"Now, you're got to be a good chap and help me. You're a free trader and can tell our people what a washout protection is in the colonies. All you fellows have the gift of gab. I wish to heavens I had it. I'll be for ever in your debt."

I had very few notions about free trade one way or the other, but I saw no other chance to get what I wanted. My young gentleman was far too absorbed in his own difficulties to think how odd it was to ask a stranger who had just missed death by an ace and had lost a 1,000 guinea car to address a meeting for him on the spur of the moment. But my necessities did not allow me to contemplate oddnesses or to pick and choose my supports.

"All right," I said. "I'm not much good as a speaker, but I'll tell them a bit about Australia."

At my words the ears of the ages slipped from his shoulders, and he was rapturous in his thanks. He lent me a big driving coat and never troubled to ask why I had started in a motor tour without possessing an umbrella and as we shuffled down the dusty roads poured into my ears the simple facts of his history.

He was an orphan, and his uncle had brought him up. I've forgotten the uncle's name, but he was in the cabinet, and you can read his speeches in the papers.

He had gone round the world after leaving Cambridge, and then, being short of a job, his uncle had advised politics. I gathered that he had no preference in parties. "Good chaps in both," he said cheerfully, "and plenty of blighters too. I'm Liberal because my family have always been Whigs."

But if he was lukewarm politically he had strong views on other things. He found out I knew a bit about horses and jawed away about the Derby entries, and he was full of plans for improving his shooting—all together a very clean, decent, callow young man.

As we passed through a little town two policemen signaled us to stop and flashed their lanterns on us. "Beg pardon, Sir Harry," said one. "We've got instructions to look out for a car, and the description's no unlike yours."

"Right-o," said my host, while I thanked Providence for the devious ways I had been brought to safety.

After that we spoke no more, for my host's mind began to labor heavily with his coming speech. His lips kept muttering, his eye wandered, and I began to prepare myself for a second catastrophe. I tried to think of something to say myself, but my mind was dry as a stone.

The next thing I knew we had drawn up outside a door in a street and were being welcomed by some noisy gentlemen in rosettes.

The hall had about 500 in it, women mostly, a lot of bald heads and a dozen or two young men.

The chairman, a wrenly minister with a reddish nose, lamented Crumpton's absence, soliloquized on his influenza and gave me a certificate as a "trusted leader of Australian thought." There were two policemen at the door, and I hoped they took note of this testimonial.

Then Sir Harry started.

I never heard anything like it. He didn't begin to know how to talk. He had about a bushel of notes from which he read, and when he let go of them he fell into one prolonged stutter.

Every now and then he remembered a phrase he had learned by heart, straightened his back and gave it off like Henry Irving and the next moment he was bent double and crooning over his papers. It was the most appalling rot too.

He talked about the "German menace" and said it was all a Tory invention to cheat the poor of their rights and keep back the great flood of social reform, but that "organized labor" realized this and laughed the Tories to scorn. He was all for reducing our navy as a proof of our good faith and their sending Germany an ultimatum demanding that she should do the same.

He said that but for the Tories Germany and Britain would be fellow workers in peace and reform. I thought of the little black book in my pocket!

Yet in a queer way I liked the speech. You could see the niceness of the chap shitting out behind the nonsense with which he had been spoonfed; also it took a load off my mind. I mightn't be much of an orator, but I was 1,000 per cent better than Sir Harry. I didn't get on so badly when it came to my turn. I simply told them all I could remember about Australia, praying there should be no Australian there—all about its labor party and emigration and universal service:

I doubt if I remembered to mention free trade, but I said there were no

Tories in Australia, only Labor and Liberals. That fetched a cheer, and I woke them up a bit when I started to tell them the kind of glorious business I thought could be made out of the empire if we really put our backs into it.

Altogether I fancy I was rather a success. The minister didn't like me, though, and when he proposed a vote of thanks spoke of Sir Harry's speech as "statesmanlike" and mine as having the "eloquence of an official emigration agent."

When we were in the car again my host was in wild spirits at having got his job over. "A ripping speech, Twisden," he said. "Now, you're coming home with me. I'm all alone, and if you'll stop a day or two I'll show you some very decent fishing."

We had a hot supper, and I wanted it pretty badly; and then drank grog in a big cheery smoking room with a crackling wood fire. I thought the time had come for me to put my cards on the table. I saw by this man's eye that he was the kind you can trust.

"Listen, Sir Harry," I said. "I've something pretty important to say to you. You're a good fellow and I'm going to tell you a story."

I can see yet that bright room with the deer's heads and the old prints on the walls. Sir Harry standing restlessly on the stone curb of the hearth and myself lying back in an armchair speaking. I seemed to be another person, standing aside and listening to my own voice and judging carefully of the reliability of my tale.

It was the first time I had ever told any one the exact truth, so far as I understood it, and it did me no end of good, for it straightened out the thing in my own mind.

I blinked no detail. He heard all about Scudder and the milkman and the notebook and my doings in Galway. Presently he got very excited and walked up and down the hearth rug.

"So, you see," I concluded, "you have got here in your house the man that is wanted for the Portland place-murder. Your duty is to send your car for the police and give me up. I don't think I'll get very far. There'll be an accident, and I'll have a knife in my ribs in an hour or so after arrest. Nevertheless it's your duty as a law-abiding citizen. Perhaps in a month's time you'll be sorry, but you have no cause to think of that."

He was looking at me with bright, steady eyes. "What was your job in Rhodesia, Mr. Hannay?" he asked.

"Mining engineer," I said. "I've made my pile cleanly, and I've had a good time in the making of it."

"Not a profession that weakens the nerves, is it?"

I laughed. "Oh, as to that, my nerves are good enough!" I took down a hunting knife from a stand on the wall and did the old Mashona trick of tossing it and catching it in my lips. That wants a pretty steady heart.

He watched me with a smile. "I don't want proofs. I may be an ass on the platform, but I can size up a man. You're no murderer, and you're no fool, and I believe you are speaking the truth. I'm going to back you up. Now, what can I do?"

"First, I want you to write a letter to your uncle. I've got to get in touch with the government people sometime before the 15th of June."

He pulled his mustache.

"That won't help you. This is foreign office business, and my uncle would have nothing to do with it. Besides, you'd never convince him. No, I'll go one better. I'll write to the permanent secretary at the foreign office. He's my godfather and one of the best going. What do you want?"

He sat down at a table and wrote to my dictation. The gist of it was that if a man called Twisden (I thought I had better stick to that name) turned up before June 15 he was to treat him kindly. He said Twisden would prove his bona fides by passing the word "Black Stone" and whistling "Annie Laurie."

"Good," said Sir Harry. "That's the proper style. By the way, you'll find my godfather—his name's Sir Walter Bullivant—down in the country cottage for Whitinsdale. It's close to Arthurswell on the Kennet. That's done. Now, what's the next thing?"

"You're about my height. Lend me the oldest tweed suit you've got. Anything will do so long as the color is the opposite of the clothes I destroyed this afternoon. Then show me a map of the neighborhood and explain to me the lie of the land. Lastly, if the police come asking about me just show them the car in the glen. If the other lot turn up tell them I caught the south express after your meeting."

He did or promised to do all these things.

I shaved off the remnants of my mustache and got inside an ancient suit of what I believe is called heather mixture. The nap gave me some notion of my whereabouts and told me the two things I wanted to know—where the main railway to the south could be joined and what, where the wildest districts near at hand.

At 2 o'clock he wakened me from my slumber in the smoking room armchair and led me blithely into the dark, starry night. An old bicycle was found in a tool shed and handed over to me.

"First turn to the right up by the long fir wood," he enjoined. "By day break you'll be well into the hills. Then I should pitch the machine into a bog and take to the moors on foot. You can put in a week among the sheepherds and be as safe as if you were in New Guinea."

I pedaled diligently up steep roads of hill gravel till the skies grew pale with morning. As the mists cleared before the sun I found myself in a wide green world, with glens falling on every side and a faraway blue horizon. Here, at any rate, I could get early news of my enemies.

I sat down on the very crest of the pass and took stock of my position. Behind me was the road climbing through a long cleft in the hills which was the upper glen of some notable river. In front was a flat space of maybe a mile, all pitted with bog holes and rough with tussocks. To the left and right were round shouldered, green hills as smooth as pancakes, but to the south—that is, the left hand—there was a glimpse of high, heathy mountains, which I remembered from the map as the big knot of hill which I had chosen for my sanctuary.

It was the first time I had ever told any one the exact truth, so far as I understood it, and it did me no end of good, for it straightened out the thing in my own mind.

"The ham is all right, Joe," insisted the storekeeper.

"No, it ain't boss," insisted the other. "Dat ham's sure bad."

"How can that be," continued the storekeeper, "when it was cured only last week?"

Joe reflected solemnly a moment, and then he suggested, "Maybe it's done had a relapse."

Marrying a Butterfly

By MARY EVA LEONARD

"Why, mother, where did you drop from?" asked Ralph in surprise as he opened the door one evening in answer to a ring.

"I imagined that things were not going as they should and I thought I would come and see for myself."

"Where's Ethel?" she asked, looking around the empty room.

Ralph shrugged his shoulders and made a gesture with his hands indicating that he did not know.

His mother took him by the shoulders and turned him around to the light. "Tell me what this means," she said gravely.

"It means that two weeks ago I came home to dinner and found a note announcing that my wife had decided to leave," was the laconic answer.

"Sit down and tell me what had happened." Mrs. Gordon laid her wraps on a chair and sat down in front of her son.

Ralph dropped into a chair and taking his mother's hand in his began telling them in his own words what he had done. He waited for her to reply, but instead of answering her question he said:

"My, it is good to see you, mother; need mothering."

She leaned forward and kissed him, saying briefly, "Go on."

"There is not much to tell. Everything turned out as you said it would."

Ethel shrinks all responsibility, spends every cent she can get her hands on and the evening of the first of this month I brought home a bill from a firm in Kansas City, where

HEART AND HOME PROBLEMS

By MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Letters may be addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been going with boy at church and the other night we quarreled. It was for a perfectly silly reason. I wanted him to read a book that I like very much. He read it and didn't like it all. It was a warm evening and I acted in a silly, unreasonable way. I told him that we could not be friends because our tastes are so different, and I told him that it would be well for him to go to a church two Sundays now and the boy probably has no serious intentions, you may as well let things run their natural course. It would be a shame to do anything that would hurt your cousin and make her lose her trust and love.

MARJORIE.

Since your cousin is only twenty and the boy probably has no serious intentions, you may as well let things run their natural course. It would be a shame to do anything that would hurt your cousin and make her lose her trust and love.

DEAR MRS. THOMPSON: I am a girl of sixteen. Will you please tell me of something that will make the skin and face white and take of tan?

(2) Am too young to go auto riding with a boy two years younger than I am?

(3) What nice way can a girl of my age fix her hair? I have heavy hair.

(4) Is it all right for a girl to go with a boy to a show if she has her sister with her.

DIMPLE DOLLY.

(1) For tan, it is an excellent plan to wipe over the skin with the juice of a lemon. Lemon juice is a good bleach. Buttermilk also makes a good whitener for the skin. If it is applied regularly—every night.

(2) Ask your mother what she thinks. She knows the boy and size knows you. There is really nothing wrong in it if you are sensible young girls.

(3) Wear it in braids around your head, or part it and make a psyche at the back.

(4) It does not look well for girls of sixteen to attend shows at night unless chaperone dry an older person. If your sister is older it would be all right.

DEAR MRS. THOMPSON: I am visiting at my aunt's. One of my cousins is in love with a boy who is no good. I am nineteen, my cousin is twenty and he is twenty-four. He has taken a great liking to me. My aunt has told me that she wishes I would cut my cousin out. I am quite sure I

WORRIED.

The next time you see him and have a chance to talk to him tell him that you are sorry you were so extremely unreasonable.

Say that you will be glad to have him come to see you if he wants to. Be careful to state what you have to say briefly.

If you apologize too much you will not leave as good an impression and he will think that you are overanxious to have him come back.

DEAR MRS. THOMPSON: I am borrowing a book of mine and we quarreled before he returned it. I want the book very much. Would it be all right to write him a note and ask him to get it back to me?

WORRIED.

It will be all right to write the note.

HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

The Gazette is pleased to announce that arrangements have been completed so that in future letters may be addressed direct to Dr. Wm. Brady, who will be answered by him in person.

Address your letters to Dr. Wm. Brady, 1008 Lake St., Elmhira, N.Y.

INCIDENT TO BECULOSIS.

A tall, slender girl of 19, recently graduated from high school, had been rather frail, her mother stated, for several years. Present complaint: Her mother was anxious because the girl seemed less vivacious and ambitious than formerly. The girl felt tired out all the time. She frequently complained of a stitch-like soreness in the right side and under the right shoulder blade. She was inclined to feel chilly at times in the summer day when her friends were all too warm.

No, she had no cough, she declared. The mother admitted that the girl occasionally cleared her throat. But nothing was ever really coughed up.

Much against her own wishes the girl was made to remove all clothing to the waist line. She insisted there was nothing the matter and that she was not.

Further cross examination of the mother now elicited the fact that the girl had tuberculosis had lived with the family for about a year some ten years previously. The girl was her crony.

A diagnosis of incipient tuberculosis was now made, and the family so informed, though the girl herself was told she had anemia in a marked degree and must give up her work for the summer and go to the country to live. A half truth is better than a whole lie.

She did so, protesting against the sentence, but, deferring to her parents' wishes. At 19 a girl likes company.

In three weeks she gained eight pounds in weight and her blood came up to 80 per cent. She was "eating like a bird man." In six weeks she gained in all fifteen pounds, and her blood reached 96 per cent, which is the average strength of the blood in women engaged in indoor occupations.

This gain was maintained through the following winter. Yet in all that time the physical signs on examination of the chest showed no change. However, the patient has no more temperature, and feels perfectly well and looks well. Her weight is normal for her height and age. We say the disease is "arrested." Not cured. The patient now knows the truth about her condition was her doctor's duty. And she knows that by reasonable hygiene she can retain her good health as long as any of us whose tuberculosis remains latent. For we all have tuberculosis, or practically all of us. It is only when the latent "bee" becomes "active" that we have symptoms which permit a diagnosis of deficiency to be made.

Please remember that false modesty might have allowed the tuberculosis to progress to the stage of consumption.

A MEANINGLESS SYMPTOM.

It is leucorrhea curable, and in any other way than by local treatments? What effect does this condition have upon person, especially when it is of long standing?

What do black specks floating in front of the eyes come; also a burning sensation in the back of the neck?

I am twenty-eight years old, five feet two and one-half inches tall and weigh one hundred and six pounds. Am I much under weight?

MISS J. A. L.

Leucorrhea is a symptom of many different local and general ailments and in itself of no significance. It is possible that the underlying cause is properly treated. It has no effect upon health in any way, it is rather a symptom of the disease.

Lack of exercise, over-eating, hasty eating, washing down food with tea, coffee or other healthful beverage, constipation, eyestrain and lack of deep breathing may cause specks before the eyes.

Weight of your height and age should weigh about 120 pounds. You should read the monograph on gaining weight.

DOUBLE GOITRE.

I have what they call a double goitre—it now seems to cross in the front and at times causes choking spell. I am very nervous at times. Have had the goitre about 22 years. Would that cause my nervousness? Would you advise an operation or treatment? Please pardon my writing so freely but my doctor suggested my writing to you.

G.O.R.

The goitre may be the cause of your nervousness and choking sensations. If in the opinion of Dr. D. who has examined and studied the condition in your particular case, the goitre is the cause, then an operation may be advisable. Of course, I cannot intelligently advise you about such a thing by correspondence.

CHICKEN SALAD SANDWICHES.

Between two thin slices of bread (buttered), place a layer of chicken salad on a lettuce leaf. In making chicken salad for sandwiches, chop the chicken and celery much finer than for ordinary purposes.

CLUBHOUSE SANDWICHES.—Butter hot toast, arrange half the slices on a large platter; lay a lettuce leaf on each slice, and brush lightly with a mustard dressing seasoned with mustard, cheese with pieces of two or three chicken sliced or cold breast of chicken sliced and a piece of freshly fried bacon or cold sliced tongue and fresh fried ham. Add a slice of cucumber, or green tomato pickle, cover with the remaining slices of toast and garnish with lettuce and olives. Keep as warm as possible. This is fine for luncheons.

Egg Sandwiches.—Slice hard-boiled eggs or chop them fine, season with a peanut butter, salad dressing, spread on lettuce leaves and lay between slices of buttered bread.

LOBSTER SANDWICHES.—Chop the lobster meat fine, season with salad dressing to which a tablespoonful of Worcestershire sauce has been added.

FIG SANDWICHES.—Thin slices of bread cut in fancy shapes and buttered with fig filling between each two. The fig filling should be prepared as—one-half pound finely chopped for one-third cup of sugar, half a cup of boiling water and two tablespoons of lemon juice. Mix these ingredients and cool in double boiler until thick enough to spread.

PEANUT SANDWICHES.—Grind the nuts in a chesterfield, mix with sour cream salad dressing and spread on thin slices of buttered white bread.

NUT SANDWICHES.—Thin slices of whole wheat bread cut circular and buttered. The filling should be made of chopped, roasted and salted peanuts mixed with sufficient mayonnaise to spread easily.

PEANUT BUTTER SANDWICHES.—Mix the amount of peanut butter required with an equal amount of water, stirring until they are thoroughly mixed. Season with salt, pepper and lemon juice to taste and spread thin slices of bread with the mixture. Lay a lettuce leaf in each sandwich and cut into any desired shape.

PEANUT BUTTER SANDWICHES.—Select nice cut of flank steak. Put piece of butter size of large walnut in pan. Onion, cut fine and flour. Blend all together till it commences to brown over fire. Then put steak in and almost cover with water and bake in oven about 1½ hours. Thin the broth to consistency of gravy when ready to serve.

SPICED CAKE.—One and one-half cups granulated sugar, two-thirds cup butter and lard mixed, three eggs, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, allspice and nutmeg, one cup sour milk, three cups flour, one teaspoon soda. Cream butter and sugar. Add eggs, beat light, then spices, and stir. Now add sour milk with soda dissolved in it and lastly flour. Bake in loaf or layer pans.

CURRENT FRITTERS.—Two cups dry fine bread crumbs, two tablespoons flour, two cups milk, one cup ripe currants, five eggs beaten, one-half cup powdered sugar, one tablespoon butter. Boil the milk and pour over bread. Mix and put in the butter.

Let it get cold. Beat in the yolks and sugar, flour and stiff whites, finally the currants dredged with flour. Drop in spoonfuls into the hot lard and fry.

ONLY ON THE LEVEL.

A young school friend of mine has been reading about the Spanish Inquisition and the burning of heretics in Mary's reign.

She is horrified. "I am so glad I didn't live in those times," she said. "I know I couldn't have stood having people burned to death just because they felt differently about religion. I should have interfered and perhaps I should have been burnt to death myself."

"Don't you feel that way because you live in a more tolerant age?" I asked. "Don't you think you might have felt differently if you had lived in an age of intolerance?"

"Of course, I wouldn't," she said indignantly. "I wouldn't have believed in such things."

She Wouldn't Want Anyone Burned

To Death But—

I know nothing could convince her otherwise. And yet—well, I know she has her religious prejudices as strong and no stronger than those of the age in which she lives.

She wouldn't want anyone burnt to death for belonging to an alien religion;—no; but she would vote to have a girl kept out of a society to which she belonged for that same reason.

They Think They Would be Cleaners.

People who are offended by the "lower classes" often announce that they would manage to keep themselves clean even if they were handicapped by the lack of tub and other facilities.

The answer is, "Are you more immaculate than the people with whom you have opportunities?" Very well, then, finish the equation for yourself.

This Habit of Believing that we would have been superior to a former age is one of many pleasant illusions which most of us like to cherish about ourselves.

Perhaps it is foolish to destroy them because they make us a little happier, but if self-ignorance is bliss, is it folly to be wise? I wonder. No. I don't.

CICOTTE'S PITCHING SAVES THE WHITE SOX

Enters Games in Ninth With Two on and Then Proceeds to Check Rally of Washington.

The White Sox beat Washington, 7 to 5 yesterday, knocked the Nationals back into fifth place and incidentally dropped into third place themselves as the result of Boston tying New York for the American league leadership. The Sox came off themselves pretty lucky with the victory over when the game ended Washington had the bases filled and needed only a single punch more to beat the Sox again.

Jim Scott and Eddie Cicotte were on the mound and a big bit of the victory is due to the latter's twirling. The Senators amassed seventeen hits against twelve for the Sox. When Cicotte was summoned in the ninth there was a man on first and a runner on third. Before he settled down he had passed one, filling the sacks. The Washington crowd was wild, but he threw them into gloom by making the next two batters hit high ones which Sox fielders easily gathered in.

Eddie Garrity, Beloit's representative in the big bushes, who has been playing first for Washington this week and hitting like house afire, drew a triple smash yesterday. He had soon after getting on, however. In games against the Sox this week, Eddie has been a whale with the warclub.

BODIES' COLTS DEFEAT THE I. O. O. F. BOWLERS

Bodies' Colts defeated the I. O. O. F. bowlers team last night at the Miller Auditorium. But for their securing a high score in the first event they would have been defeated by the Lodge team. Following are the scores and lineups:

	Bodies' Colts.	I. O. O. F. Bowlers
Kimball	ISS 165 155	132 162 170
McDermott	153 148 174	188 142 159
P. Bodie	166 170 122	153 165 157
Newman	158 148 167	138 187 125
Dick	201 142 158	138 132 165
	874 771 776-2418	759 789 786-2334

Cincinnati fans should be pretty happy these days. The town has not only always been a great admirer of Matty but they seem to revere the whole New York team and turn out in large numbers whenever the Giants play there. Now that they have most of the Giants' infield as well as Matty the team should look first rate to them for a while.

MORE VARSITY MEN TAKE ATHLETIC WORK

Records for Last Semester Show Big Increase—Compulsory for Freshmen and Sophomores.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Madison, Wis., July 22.—More than 44 per cent of all the men students engaged in some form of athletic work during the last semester, according to figures recently released by the department of physical education at the University of Wisconsin.

In all, 1,460 men students out of the 3,473 men enrolled in the university joined an athletic squad or enrolled in a gymnasium class.

Although this total includes freshmen and sophomores who are required to take gymnastic work, the proportion is larger than usual because an unusual number of upper-classmen voluntarily engaged in athletic work.

More than 250 students joined various intercollegiate squads during the second semester of this year. As this does not include the first semester football and other fall sports are not included in the total. During the entire year, if allowance is made for men who played on more than one team, there were 500 who were members of intercollegiate work.

Track was by far the most popular of the spring sports, for the largest number of men engaged in it and exactly seventy-six were on the varsity squad. Baseball was second with fifty-one men on the squad; twenty-one went out for swimming; eighteen for basketball, a sport in which half of the squad is necessarily limited twenty for wrestling; four for fencing; ten for gymnasium team, and twenty for golf. Tennis is becoming more popular as an intercollegiate sport, as is shown by the fact that forty men registered for it, and the varsity squad had twenty-nine members. There was no varsity squad in boxing, and rowing is no longer an intercollegiate sport at Wisconsin. Spring football is not included on the list of intercollegiate sports.

In previous years, all who were not physically able to do the required work were excused from physical exercise. But since the introduction of courses in corrective gymnastics work under the direction of Dr. C. J. Elsom, no freshman or sophomore is allowed to go without exercise of some sort. In the corrective classes 178 were registered last semester. More than 400 were enrolled in the regular gymnasium classes.

AMATEUR BALL PLAYERS TO BE AIDED BY BIG LEAGUE PLAYERS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Cleveland, July 22.—Amateur ball players will get their chance in Cleveland this season. A newspaper has promoted a scheme whereby four baseball experts, two of them ex-leaguers, will report weekly on the best player seen in action during the seven days. Scores of amateur teams here fighting out the city championship.

September the best players selected will be divided into two or four teams, as available material warrants, and a series of games played at league park. Manager Lee Feltch of the Indians will select what he believes to be the two most likely looking amateurs and give them a six weeks' tryout next spring with his team.

Managers of bush leagues also will be here and sign up any of the amateurs which look good to them. Some amateur games here draw 50,000 to 100,000 fans.

The only time a pitcher has ever been credited with retiring a side with one pitch had been in 1910, when Childs went in to pitch a perfect 9-inning moment for the Portmouth (O.) team and threw one ball that resulted in a triple play and gave him the interesting record.

ISPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE

Fairbanks-Morse Baseball Park, Beloit, July 22, 2:45 p. m.—Close to a thousand Janesville fans are in Beloit this afternoon backing the Cardinals in the first game of the week end against the Fairies. It is a game day here and an hour before the game was scheduled to start this big back of the Morse plant was crowded.

Janesville fans were not backward in evidencing the opinion that the Cardinals had the better team in the field and on the other hand the Beloit backers were just as much in evidence. "Money talks," they say, and it was shown here this afternoon.

Manager O'Brien of the Fairy team will send J. Sam Lafferty out at the opening. Ho. Tilley and Jack Rose are now warming up, the latter two to be kept in reserve for emergencies.

Manager Caldwell announced McGuire as his choice to oppose Lafferty. Close to fifteen hundred Beloit fans, it was announced by the Fairbanks-Morse Athletic association officials just as the game was ready to start, would attend the game at Janes-

SPEAKER'S CLUB KEEPS CINCINNATI IN TOP POSITION

Tris Leads American Batters—Heine Zim Well Up in Averages in National Rate.

Chicago, July 22.—Tris Speaker's big part in keeping Cleveland in the American league pennant race is shown by averages printed here today, including games played last Wednesday. FIFIELD LUMBER CO.

A Two-Family Flat House—By John Henry Newson Home of Character No. 127

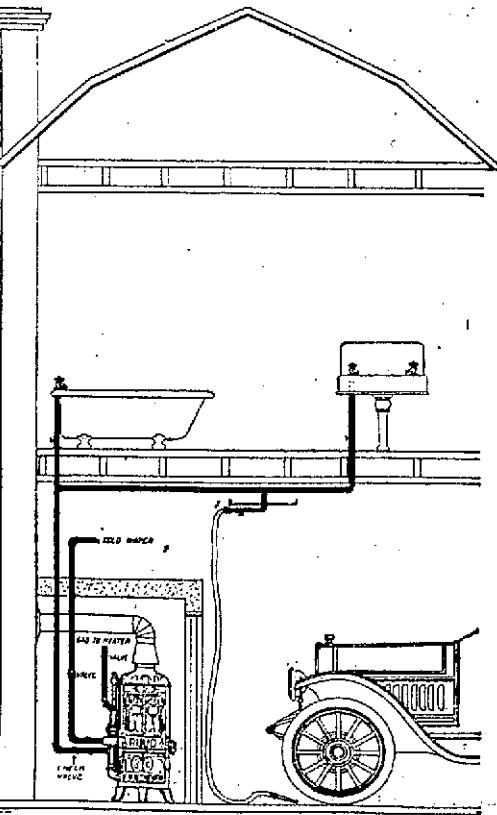

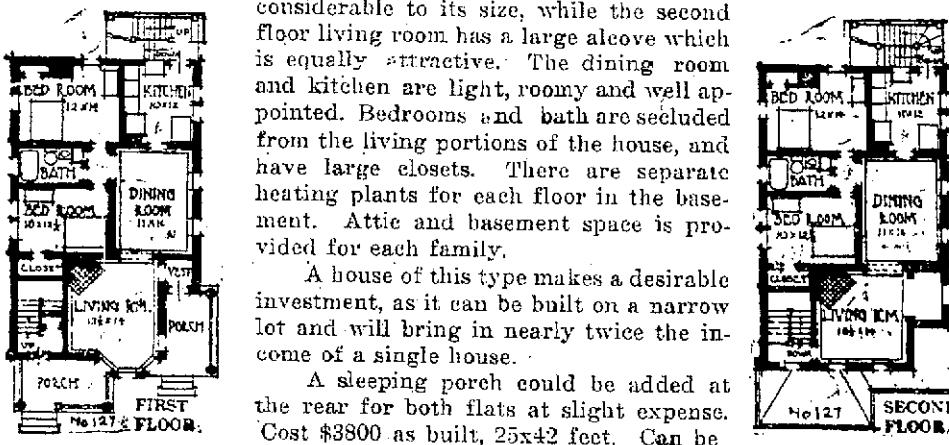

This attractive two-family house has the appearance of a single dwelling. The grouping of windows in bay and gables and the attention devoted to details of trim, porch columns, etc., are the distinguishing features.

The first and second floors are practically the same, except that living room on first floor has a well-lighted bay, which adds considerable to its size, while the second floor living room has a large alcove which is equally attractive. The dining room and kitchen are light, roomy and well appointed. Bedrooms and bath are secluded from the living portions of the house, and have large closets. There are separate heating plants for each floor in the basement. Attic and basement space is provided for each family.

A house of this type makes a desirable investment, as it can be built on a narrow lot and will bring in nearly twice the income of a single house.

A sleeping porch could be added at the rear for both flats at slight expense. Cost $3800 as built, 25x42 feet. Can be built for $3500 to $4,500.

Any Gazette reader who desires further information concerning No. 127 should address "John Henry Newson, Homes of Character Dept., The Gazette." There will be no charge for Mr. Newson's answers.
